

Cognition & Instruction Courses For Spring '10

This spring the Educational Psychology department's program in Cognition & Instruction is offering a number of stimulating, engaging courses geared to ignite that intellectual curiosity and hold it steady.

Join us for a semester complete with intellectual discourse & opportunities for future research collaborations!

Check out our offerings this Spring:

EPSY 5510: Learning: It's Implication for Education - Dr. Jason Stephens

Nature and types of learning, transfer of training, motivation, nature of instructional outcomes, with particular attention to individual differences among elementary and secondary school pupils.

When & Where: Online Course

EPSY 5520: Instructional Design - Dr. Michael Young

Instructional theories, prescriptive models, instructional strategies, issues and trends as they relate to the comprehensive development of instructional systems.

When & Where: Tues: 4-6:30pm, TBA

EPSY 5530 : Theories of Learning, Cognition and Instruction –Dr Scott Brown

Behavioral and cognitive psychology as it applies to instruction

When & Where: Weds: 4-6:30pm, TBA

EPSY 6194: Doctoral Seminar: Writing for Publication –Dr. Don Leu

When and where: Mon: 1:30-4:00 pm, Venue TBA

More information about the program is available at:

<http://www.education.uconn.edu/departments/epsy/COGN/COGN.cfm>